

PICCOLO PRESS

ESTABLISHED 1985

A demanding year.....

As with many printers, and indeed I suspect for most commercial enterprises, 2011 has not been an easy year. Paper and board and consumable materials have hugely increased in price as have general overheads. Thus survival is in itself, success.

Piccolo continues to increase its range of printing, and is producing both diestamping and letterpress work that a few years ago we would have put into the "too difficult" tray. This is a huge accolade for the perseverance and skills of my team of twelve persons, be they the workshop staff, or the designers and advisors in the office.

In the Spring, we undertook a re-design of our website, filling it with more pictures of our work. This is bringing rewards in more orders and the many customers who are kind enough to let us know of their satisfaction with our products and service.

Thus it was a huge delight for all the team that we won the PrintWeek 2011 "Social Stationery Printer of the Year" awarded at Grosvenor House, London on 24th October. It was indeed a proud moment and a vindication of all the hard work, good customer service and skill that has been built up over twenty six years. So I hope you will excuse this indulgence if we concentrate on this happy event, certainly the apex of our year - and all the past years too.

It now behoves me to thank you, suppliers, customers, agents, external designers and friends within the "printing trade" for all your involvement with us.

It is a huge joy and satisfaction working with you all and having so many good friends and colleagues with whom to have such good "Scottish Craic".

A HAPPY CHRISTMAS & 2012
TO YOU ALL.

Tim Honnor, Margaret Hendry, John Sinclair and Team at Piccolo Press

ENTRY ENGRAVED CARD IN THREE COLOURS THAT JUDGES CONSIDERED

"QUALITY ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE"

Staff enjoy the return of Tim Honnor from London - with the Trophy!

Tim Honnor & Margaret Hendry outside Piccolo Press